

NORTH MEMPHIS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

North Memphis Community Development Corporation (NMCDC), a non-profit organization, was started in February 2000, by concerned residents who wanted to make difference in their community. The NMCDC was established to battle neighborhood problems and create solutions through a formal organization with a comprehensive management structure. The NMCDC provides the residents of North Memphis the opportunity to successfully rebuild their community from the inside out.

"To enhance the quality of life in the North Memphis Community through promoting economic development opportunities; creating and preserving affordable housing; and encouraging a greater sense of community lift, commitment and involvement."

NORTH MEMPHIS

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The North Memphis community was once a community with rich, vibrant people. However, the community is now faced with many challenges. Little business has survived, and much of the housing stock is old and in poor condition. Unemployment and under education are severe problems. The population is aging and dwindling. In addition, the community must confront, a citywide misconception of being dangerous, drug infested, and prohibitive. Nevertheless, with the assistance of local non-profit, for-profit, and government agencies, the many challenges faced by the North Memphis community can be overcome. The community has the potential to develop significantly, with coordination and collaborative work being the keys to a successful social and economic development effort.
